Product information

Giovanni Busi considers the Rufina zone ideal for growing Chardonnay. Calcareous marl with limestone deposits and ideally-positioned vineyards in the cool Tuscan uplands produce grapes with tangy acidity and flinty minerality. 10% Sauvignon Blanc adds an aromatic kick. A great value in screwcap liter.

Producer information

Estate owner Giovanni Busi respects the particulars of Rufina's climate, weather and soils. As distinguished from the better-known Classico zone, he is sure that the Rufina terroir produces singular Sangiovese. He should know. His family has owned the property for centuries. A warm, dry climate moderated by cooling breezes coupled with well-drained clay and limestone marl produce ideal conditions for producing age-worthy sangiovese.
