Product information

Vines are grown in the heart of the Rufina zone at up to 900 feet above sea level. Giovanni Busi vinifies varieties separately in temperature-controlled stainless steel using a 12-day maceration. The wine is aged for at least nine months in French oak of various size and age, one year in steel and four months in bottle.

Producer information

Estate owner Giovanni Busi respects the particulars of Rufina's climate, weather and soils. As distinguished from the better-known Classico zone, he is sure that the Rufina terroir produces singular Sangiovese. He should know. His family has owned the property for centuries. A warm, dry climate moderated by cooling breezes coupled with well-drained clay and limestone marl produce ideal conditions for producing age-worthy sangiovese.
