Product information

Grapes are left to dry for up to 12 weeks, then pressed and vinified. After fermentation, the wine spends five years in small kegs in an attic, exposed to the changes in season. Gently oxidized and off-dry, this is a superbly food-friendly dessert wine.

Producer information

Estate owner Giovanni Busi respects the particulars of Rufina's climate, weather and soils. As distinguished from the better-known Classico zone, he is sure that the Rufina terroir produces singular Sangiovese. He should know. His family has owned the property for centuries. A warm, dry climate moderated by cooling breezes coupled with well-drained clay and limestone marl produce ideal conditions for producing age-worthy sangiovese.
